Cultural Heritage and Language Maintenance: Sustainable Regional Development

Message from the Guest Editors

In the context of globalization, the preservation of regional cultural and language heritage has become foundational to the sustainable development of society. This Special Issue welcomes submissions addressing questions including, but not limited to, the following:

How do cultural heritage and language maintenance contribute to sustainable regional development?

What are the relationships between cultural/linguistic factors and socioeconomic variables?

What are the factors influencing the preservation of cultural heritage and language in a region?

What are the challenges in preserving a region's cultural heritage and language maintenance?

How can these challenges be tackled for sustainable regional development?

We also welcome case studies of cultural heritage promotion, linguistic landscapes and language maintenance policies. We welcome submissions from authors in different regions worldwide to investigate these critical issues using diverse theoretical and methodological approaches.
