Marine Biodiversity, Ecosystems and Sustainability: Building Resilient Oceans

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue, “Marine Biodiversity, Ecosystems, and Sustainability: Building Resilient Oceans”, brings together interdisciplinary research that advances our understanding of how marine species, ecological networks, and socio-economic systems respond to environmental change and anthropogenic drivers. With a sustainability-oriented perspective, this issue highlights the urgent need to integrate ecological principles with adaptive management, technological innovation, and community-based stewardship to safeguard marine biodiversity.
