

Special Issue

Driving Towards Sustainability: Circular Economy, Reverse Logistics, Climate Resilience, and Technological Innovation

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue will enrich the existing literature, bridging the gaps between circular economy models, reverse logistics, and climate resilience while incorporating the recent technological advancements like AI, ML, robotics, IoT, autonomous trucking/vehicles, flying cars, predictive data analytics, and many more. By presenting empirical studies, case analyses, and theoretical discussions, the Issue will offer a cohesive view of how these elements interact, providing researchers and practitioners with a practical framework that advances the current understanding and application in sustainability studies.

- circular economy
- reverse logistics
- climate resilience
- technological innovation
- sustainable supply chain
- waste reduction strategies
- renewable energy systems
