

Special Issue

Sustainability in Spatial Planning: Climate Change Challenges and Local Development

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue will explore scientific, socio-economic, and policy-driven approaches that support climate-resilient spatial planning. Contributions are invited that focus on the following: (1) the integration of climate adaptation and mitigation strategies into land-use planning; (2) innovative tools, models, and technologies for sustainable urban and rural development; (3) governance frameworks and policy measures for climate adaptation; (4) the role of nature-based solutions, circular economy principles, and stakeholder participation in sustainable spatial development; (5) the interactions between air pollution, human health, and urban planning; (6) hydrological processes and their role in flood management, water resource protection, and climate resilience; (7) the impact of spatial planning on biodiversity conservation and ecosystem services.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international open access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
