Audit and Financial Control Tools Aimed at Ensuring the Sustainable Performance of Organizations

Message from the Guest Editor

The managers of organizations of different sizes and with different activity objects obtain important advice after carrying out audits or financial control actions. Obviously, as has been demonstrated over time, once the measures required are implemented, they are usually followed by a significant increase in the organization's performance regardless of whether it is a company – private or belonging to a state authority – or a public institution. In this context, we consider, in particular, economic performance, which is quantifiable. Therefore, researchers from around the world are welcome to submit original contributions to this Special Issue of the Sustainability journal, which focuses on topics we consider to be of particular interest to a large number of readers, especially since the approaches have to take into account the major constraint that is the obligation to respect a strict/severe normative framework.
