The Arts, Community and Sustainable Social Change

Message from the Guest Editors

Editors welcome a variety of empirical and theoretical contributions and analyses that explore or illumine:

- The role of arts-based strategies in establishing civic mechanisms to address endemic social or political conflict;
- The relationship between the arts and individual and social agency and social imagination;
- The ties between extant social claims and values and dominant community narratives or stories and the roles that arts-based interventions may play in highlighting those and providing space for individual and communal reflection and possible sustainable social change;
- Analyses of development, aesthetics or aesthetic theory and their implications for scholarly understanding of the above dynamics;
- Arts-based interventions that support community innovation and change;
- Explorations of examples of arts leadership that might result in sustainable social and/or political imaginaries.
