

Special Issue

Entrepreneurship, Digital Transformation and Sustainable Development Goals

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue explores the dynamic intersection of sustainable entrepreneurship, digital innovation, and strategic management, focusing on how these fields can collaboratively address pressing global challenges. It emphasizes the transformative potential of digital tools and innovative strategies in enabling businesses to align with the Sustainable Development Goals. By integrating sustainability into core business operations, this Special Issue seeks to showcase how organizations can balance economic viability with environmental stewardship and social responsibility. Aligned with the journal's mission to address sustainability challenges, this Special Issue contributes to defining and quantifying sustainability through innovative tools and strategic frameworks. It highlights methods for measuring and monitoring sustainability, evaluates the impact of policies and laws, and provides integrated approaches to achieving the United Nations' Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). Ultimately, this Special Issue seeks to inspire innovative solutions and advance understanding of sustainability within socio-economic, scientific, and policy contexts.
