

Special Issue

Exploring Education Management Strategies for Sustainable Development—2nd Edition

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue invites contributions that explore these strategies, supported by robust empirical evidence and diverse global perspectives. We welcome case studies, comparative research, and longitudinal analyses demonstrating how intellectual capital development can sustain education organizations in the face of rapid technological and societal change. By integrating theory and practice, this issue aims to inform policies and management strategies that advance sustainable education. Key Topics:

- Development of human, structural, and relational capital in education
- Digital transformation, AI, and intellectual capital management
- Educational leadership and knowledge sharing
- Innovation and adaptability in educational institutions
- Quality and knowledge management systems
- Organizational learning and continuous improvement
- Stakeholder engagement and partnerships
- Professional development and lifelong learning
- Sustainable practices in education
- Global perspectives on educational innovation

I look forward to receiving your contributions.
