

Special Issue

Efficiency and Effectiveness of Universities in Achieving Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs)

Message from the Guest Editors

Universities can influence global sustainability through their teaching, research, third mission and own actions. This special issue invites articles that cover any or all of these university activities, and which address one or more SDGs and the outcomes. The emphasis is on policy recommendations and actions. Papers submitted to the special issue should be empirical and/or practical in nature, and might be based on quantitative analysis (such as cross section or time series analysis), or on case studies. Papers selected for this special issue are subject to a rigorous peer review procedure with the aim of rapid and wide dissemination of research results and applications.
