Sustainable Regional Economic Development via Entrepreneurship and Innovation Ecosystems

Message from the Guest Editors

The increased number of studies in sustainable regional economic development highlight the necessity of a ecosystemic approach that will be able to identify, recognize, access and integrate knowledge assets more effectively and efficiently to derive, develop and capture non-appropriable, defensible, sustainable and scalable pecuniary benefits. Such an approach can focus on smart, sustainable and inclusive growth of regions, emphasizing the Quadruple and Quintuple Innovation Helix models which empower civil society on a triple-bottom-line-centric basis (i.e. environmentally, financially and socially sustainable manner).

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international open access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
