Advances in Interdisciplinary Sustainable Electrified Transport Systems

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims to draw out recent advances in interdisciplinary approaches to research problems in integrated electric transport systems, taking a holistic approach to explain the synergies from combining different energy storage approaches and transport applications across a variety of transport modes. Original research articles and reviews are welcome in this Special Issue. Research areas may include (but are not limited to) the following: Applied, practical, and theoretical approaches to addressing sustainable electrified transport; Transport-related demonstrator systems; Synergies of electrified multi-modal transport applications; Integration of energy storage systems into electrified transport networks; Public transport applications for energy storage solutions; Autonomous and robotic transport systems; Electrified maritime and aviation transport solutions. We look forward to receiving your contributions.
