

Topical Collection

Sustainability in Financial Industry

Message from the Collection Editor

This Topical Collection focuses on sustainability practices in financial industry. I encourage the submission of empirical and theoretical contributions investigating innovative sustainable business models and sustainable financial instruments, also in light of the new regulatory frameworks on sustainable finance and climate risk. Moreover, the Topical Collection welcomes research papers separately or jointly exploring the environmental, social, and financial performance (ESG) of both financial institutions and markets and the relationship between ESG performance and financial performance, also over the COVID-19 pandemic. Themes of interest include but are not limited to:

- Innovative business models for sustainable finance;
- Innovative financial instruments and architectures for sustainability;
- Financial performance of sustainable instruments, institutions, and markets;
- Accountability practices in the field of sustainability;
- Impact of new sustainability regulations on financial markets and institutions.
- Strategies, challenges over the COVID-19 pandemic
