

Special Issue

Gender Issues in Transport and Mobility

Message from the Guest Editors

With this Special Issue, we are looking for contributions that advance the research of gender and mobility. We do not aim to re-discover the known gender mobility gap; we are especially looking for findings regarding unresearched fields and concepts to implement findings into the field of transport and mobility planning, offering policy recommendations. The topics are as follows:

- Differences in specific aspects of transport behaviour such as cycling, leisure activities and/or commuting;
- Addressing safety issues that occur because of the different physiologies of women and men;
- Gender-sensitive data collection and analysis in mobility and transport;
- Best practice implementations and policy recommendations for inclusive transport systems;
- Gender issues regarding innovative mobility offers such as MaaS, micromobility or shared mobility.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international Open Access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. Sustainability publishes original research articles, review articles and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
