Human Mobility and Sustainability in Time of Pandemic

Message from the Guest Editor

We propose to cover a broad spectrum of original research contributions that intertwine human mobility and sustainability: the pandemic's impact on refugees' sustainable inclusion; economic and social consequences of human mobility restrictions under COVID-19; mobility behavior of EU citizens in the time of the pandemic; mobility and sustainable health systems; resilience and sustainability; transient mobility and sustainable agriculture; COVID-19 and public transport; the reconstruction of a sustainable tourism infrastructure that facilitates human mobility; social distance and impact on sustainability; inequality in mobility; sustainable borders; social distance and contribution of migrants to a sustainable economy; new forms of sustainable (in) mobility; digitalization of work; and other (im)mobility and sustainability.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international open access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
