

Special Issue

Entrepreneurship, Innovation, and Regional and Firm Sustainable Development

Message from the Guest Editors

Our central aim is to generate a better understanding of the role of sustainability, its entrepreneurial and innovative causes, and its impacts on firm behavior and performance. The role of policy and entrepreneurship are especially highlighted. In this Special Issue, original research articles and reviews are welcome. Research areas and possible themes may include (but are not limited to) the following:

- The issues of ESG and corporate sustainable development;
- Firm-level factors shaping the sustainable and energy-efficient behaviors;
- The impact of new environmental governance policies on the sustainable behavior of local governments and enterprises;
- The effects of entrepreneurship on firm sustainable development;
- The effects of innovation on firm sustainable development;
- Governance and management of firms' sustainable behavior in different industries, in different regions, and in different countries;
- The role of social, ethical, and institutional factors in firms' sustainable behavior.
