Innovating the Circular Future: Pathways to Sustainable Growth

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue, "Innovating the Circular Future: Pathways to Sustainable Growth", invites scholars and practitioners to explore cutting-edge research and practical insights at the intersection of the circular economy, technological and business innovation, and sustainability. Our aim is to foster a comprehensive dialog that advances both theoretical understanding and practical application in this critical field. Topics of interest include (but are not limited to):

- Circular economy strategies and business models;
- Technological innovations enabling circular practices (e.g., AI, blockchain, IoT);
- Sustainable production and consumption patterns;
- Circular supply chain management and logistics;
- Recycling, upcycling, and waste-to-value approaches;
- Lifecycle assessment and sustainable product design;
- Consumer participation and environmental activism;
- Sharing economy and collaborative consumption platforms;
- Policy frameworks supporting circular innovation;
- Metrics and indicators for circularity and sustainability performance.
