Industrial Sustainability Assessment and Communication: Metrics, Methods, and Tools

Message from the Guest Editors

The interest of industries in the sustainability performance of their production processes and products, as well as in the communication of their sustainability impacts, has grown strongly in recent years. This phenomenon can be observed on a global level, since the pressure from stakeholders towards industries is increasing worldwide. This highlights the need for approaches for the evaluation and communication of sustainability performance that can provide reliable and credible results, thus, discouraging greenwashing practices aimed at deceiving customers and the general public. This Special Issue will promote research concerning the assessment and communication of industrial sustainability, both at a global level and with respect to each of its three dimensions (economic, environmental, social).
