

Special Issue

Evaluating the Impact of Innovation and, Identifying the New Challenges in Smart and Sustainable Manufacturing

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue focusses on disseminating research from real-life sustainable manufacturing systems development, where theory and new approaches have been applied successfully. We invite good quality research articles that focus on detailed research exploring the application of novel sustainability strategies and systems from both industry professionals and academic researchers. The Special Issue will extend an opportunity to academic and industry researchers to share real-life applications and investigations.
