Sustainable Higher Education for Academic Entrepreneurship

Message from the Guest Editors

Over time, higher education institutions (HEIs) have evolved to adapt to the needs of the market and their students. Currently, HEIs' mission is not only centered on teaching and research, but also on developing the local community through entrepreneurial activities (Etzkowitz, 2000; Rothaermel, 2007). Academic entrepreneurship falls within the scope of the third mission of HEIs, through a multidisciplinary approach, contributing to the development of the community and the territory in which they operate through large-scale knowledge and technology transfer (Compagnucci, 2020). Potential topics for this Special Issue include (but are not limited to):

- Entrepreneurial intention in HEI students;
- Entrepreneurial education;
- HEI and co-creation of business innovation;
- Social entrepreneurship and sustainability of sustainable entrepreneurship in HEI;
- Knowledge and technology transfer;
- Technology transfer offices (TTOs);
- Business incubators in HEIs;
- Creation and support of start-ups in HEIs;
- Spinoff;
- Patents;
- HEI-business cooperation;
- Entrepreneurial universities;
- Internationalization of HEIs;
- Entrepreneurial ecosystems.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international open access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
