

Special Issue

Pro-Environmental Behavior and Sustainable Development in Organizations

Message from the Guest Editors

In recent years, environmental sustainability has emerged as a central priority for organizations, driven by pressing challenges such as climate change, resource depletion, and growing regulatory and societal expectations. Organizations are increasingly being called upon to redefine their strategies as society seeks to harmonize economic growth with environmental stewardship.

This Special Issue explores the pivotal role of organizations in the transition toward a sustainable economy, addressing the opportunities and challenges associated with the adoption of environmentally responsible practices and business models. It emphasizes how advancements in technological innovation, resource management, governance, communication strategies, and psychological interventions can simultaneously mitigate environmental impacts and enhance organizational value.

We welcome submissions on topics including but not limited to:

- environmental sustainability
- pro-environmental behavior
- circular business models
- sustainability reporting
- sustainable development goals
- green technologies
- sustainable decision-making
- resource management
