Sustainable Low-Carbon Transitions: Advancements in the Sectors of Land, Water and Energy

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue focuses on the exploration and analysis of inter-disciplinary methods, tools and policies supporting transitions to a low-carbon economy.

Emphasis is placed on the role that land, water, and energy sectors may play in such an effort. Issues that will be investigated concern:

- Land use management under climate change conditions
- Energy mix: Towards a zero impact society
- Low-carbon economies and territorial transformations
- Sustainable management of the land-water-energy (LWE) nexus
- Smart management of water resources in the urban and rural space
- 'Green Deal' and clean energy solutions
