Message from the Guest Editor

The aim of this Special Issue is to assemble a set of science-based papers reporting how the maritime spatial planning process, in all its aspects, could enhance fisheries' sustainability. Priority will be given to papers that include novel tools and approaches that will be useful to facilitate maritime spatial planning for the fishery sector. Papers are invited from all countries and could describe specific case studies that can contribute to better understand how to move forward in maritime spatial planning for sustainable fisheries.
