

Special Issue

Smart and Sustainable Cities and Regions

Message from the Guest Editor

Cities and regions are emerging the subject of much contemporary research aiming to find leverage points to address the pressing sustainability crisis. Issues of climate change, biodiversity loss, the waste crisis, circular economy, and business sustainability are increasingly addressed through the prism of cities and regions. This Special Issue is devoted to examining how cities and regions around the world are responding to the sustainability challenge, new frameworks and models, case studies, success stories and groundbreaking research.

In this Special Issue, original research articles and reviews are welcome. Research areas may include (but are not limited to) the following:

- Sustainability assessment of cities and regions;
- Ecosystem contribution to human wellbeing in cities and regions;
- ESG investment in cities and regions;
- Circular economy in cities and regions;
- Sustainability policy assessment in cities and regions;
- Air pollution in cities and regions;
- Health and the environment in cities and regions;
- Sustainable transport systems in cities and regions;
- Smart solutions for sustainability in cities and regions.

I look forward to receiving your contributions.
