

Special Issue

Entrepreneurship, Technology Revolution and Sustainability

Message from the Guest Editor

We invite papers for the Special Issue: "Entrepreneurship, Technology Revolution and Sustainability". Papers can be conceptual, theoretical, or empirical, and can include literature reviews and meta analyses. Submissions are encouraged from a variety of disciplines. Interdisciplinary perspectives and multi-level explorations are also well suited to the aims of the Special Issue. Potential topics may include (but are not limited to) the following:

- Technological and entrepreneurial predictors of sustainability;
- Interlinkages/synergies between humans, technology and sustainability;
- Challenges/opportunities at the nexus of technology, entrepreneurship and sustainability;
- Shaping technology trajectories for sustainable outcomes;
- Ethical consequences of technological revolutions for sustainability;
- Entrepreneurialism and environmental activism;
- Unintended consequences of technological revolutions;
- Potential pitfalls;
- Stakeholder involvement;
- Sustainable entrepreneurship;
- Transitions to new sustainability regimes;
- Sustainable technology;
- Rural-urban contexts; Regulatory policies.

We look forward to receiving your contributions.
