

Special Issue

Sustainable Tourism Marketing: Towards Transparent Communication to Empower Informed Decisions

Message from the Guest Editors

The aim of this Special Issue is to explore tourism marketing strategies to reach sustainability goals. This will include product development focused on green and socially aware tourists, as well as the psychological antecedents of choice and willingness to pay for sustainable tourism services and destinations. It could look at how businesses and destinations deal with the apparent contradiction between the need to encourage people to travel and limit the industry's environmental impact, as well as the role of travel influencers in this context. Through the expansion of knowledge and theory, this Special Issue aims to support tourism stakeholders to address sustainability challenges more effectively and transparently. Topics may include the following:

- Influencing tourists' behaviour: How to persuade tourists to adopt sustainable practices when travelling and at home.
- Marketing "alternative tourism"—regenerative, community-based, rural, creative, etc.
- Marketing that recognizes tourism workers.
- Sustainable tourism marketing in the context of the sharing economy.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international open access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
