

Special Issue

Advances in Economic Development and Business Management

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue encourages researchers to make their contribution to highlighting the role of business management in helping organizations achieve the transformations that are needed to become sustainable and to also continuously improve sustainability in the future. Conceptual, theoretical and empirical contributions from the social sciences are welcome, as are original research articles and reviews. Research areas may include (but they are not limited to) the following:

- Government policy and business management;
- The unofficial economy and economic development;
- Digital transformation of business;
- Knowledge economy, development and business management;
- Digital transformation of an organization and sustainable performance;
- Entrepreneurship and sustainable performance;
- Innovation and new entrepreneurship models;
- Innovation strategies and sustainable entrepreneurship.

I look forward to receiving your contributions.
