Sustainable Development of Energy, Water and Environment Systems (SDEWES)

Message from the Guest Editors

“Sustainable Development of Energy, Water, and Environment Systems” is dedicated to the advancement and dissemination of knowledge on the methods, policies, and technologies for increasing the sustainability of development by de-coupling growth from the use of natural resources and by transition to a knowledge-based economy, all while taking into account the economic, environmental, and social pillars of sustainable development. One of the main issues of the coming decades is to improve efficiencies by integrating various life-supporting systems, using the excess from one as a resource in another in the correct moment. Integrating electricity, heating, cooling, transport, water, buildings, waste, wastewater, industry, forestry, and agriculture systems will be pivotal towards sustainable development. About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international open access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
