

Special Issue

Sustainability of Fiscal Policy

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue will comprise papers covering a wide range of aspects related to fiscal sustainability. Papers can address fiscal rules, intergenerational fairness, impact of ageing societies, or political and/or politicoeconomical questions concerning fiscal sustainability, and may approach these from a variety of backgrounds such as economics, political science, or sociology. Especially welcome are empirical contributions discussing fiscal sustainability at the federal or other levels, like public pension systems, public health, or long-term care insurance or other subsystems of public social safety nets. This includes studies in specific countries but also international comparisons. Papers selected for this issue may also address methodological development in assessing fiscal sustainability including simulation, generational accounting, econometric, and other modeling approaches. About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international Open Access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. Sustainability publishes original research articles, review articles and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
