Sustainable Education in Higher Education: Reflective and Cooperative Learning

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue of Sustainability, entitled 'Sustainable Education in Higher Education: Reflective and Cooperative Learning', is seeking research (educational, professional, etc.) in actual or simulated settings addressing cooperative and reflective learning. Educational programs that address some of the dimensions of sustainability in the educational, cultural, and environmental domains, through reflective or cooperative learning, are especially important. Some examples include the following: learning and teaching in primary, secondary, and tertiary systems; participation of students at all levels (i.e., from primary to tertiary systems) in activities that promote readiness; activation of sustainable competences through cooperative and reflective learning; technology-enhanced applications through cooperative programs; development of STEM and STEAM education through cooperation, or reflective and cooperative literacy.
