Sustainable Financing for Companies under COVID-19

Message from the Guest Editors

COVID-19 has caused changes and blockages in economic activities, resulting in the hibernation of financial resources [1]; COVID-19 has also led to a change in business models, requiring further study in the face of new funding needs [8–9]. Numerous questions have arisen regarding the type and amount of funding obtained in each state for the survival or development of some sectors [8].

Considering the challenges in sustainable finance and the ongoing pandemic, this Special Issue aims to contribute to the scholarly debate on financing during the COVID-19 period by presenting original researches and critical perspectives for current and new applied approaches. Topics include (but are not limited to):

- New corporate finance tools in COVID-19 era;
- The impact of funding on industrial sectors in each state;
- The role of impact finance/Islamic finance during COVID-19;
- New challenges in sustainable finance during COVID-19;
- The impact of financing on the business model;
- The establishment of new public and private financing schemes during the pandemic;
- The role of crowdfunding and waqf during COVID-19;
- The absorption or destruction of funding and resources during COVID-19.
