Special Issue

Ceramic Industry Transition to a Sustainable Model

Message from the Guest Editors

The Special Issue aims to attract works on any element of the Ceramic Tile value chain that plays a role in the sustainability transition of the Ceramic Tile Industry. This scope will be mainly focused on new challenges such as energy consumption and sources, associated GHG emissions, circular economy, environmental impacts based on the life cycle perspective, and emerging pollutants, among others, but also contextual aspects affecting the performance of the innovation system like the legal framework, issues related to industry legitimacy, and market evolution. The purpose of the Special Issue is to update the state-of-the-art regarding the Ceramic Industry Transition to a Sustainable Model. and by so doing, to become a reference for researchers in both ceramic tile industry and sustainability transition literatures.
