

Special Issue

Circular Economy for Sustainable Manufacturing

Message from the Guest Editors

The awareness of environmental protection is growing with the rapid development of industrialization globally. Such awareness triggers the importance of implementing sustainable manufacturing practices and a circular economy. To accomplish sustainable manufacturing and a circular economy, there need to be substantial attempts to ascertain a dynamic balance between human, financial, and environmental concerns.

This Special Issue aims to publish high-quality research papers on the interdisciplinary field of sustainable manufacturing and circular-economy-related issues. The scope of this issue can be summarized below:

- Sustainability in manufacturing enterprises;
- Green manufacturing and sustainable supply chain management;
- Circular issue in industries with respect to economic, social, and environmental aspects;
- Models and frameworks to ensure sustainable manufacturing;
- Economic, social and environmental aspects of sustainable manufacturing;
- Variables and standards to manage a sustainable ecosystem;
- Public awareness and stakeholder involvement
