

Special Issue

Climate Risk Management for Resilient Agricultural Systems

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue (SI) focuses on cross-disciplinary research that applies climate knowledge in order to enhance its value to agricultural climate risk decision-making and support the resilience of agricultural production systems and associated socio-ecological systems (rural landscapes and communities). As such, we invite manuscripts that meet the following criteria:

- Focus: Integrated climate services (early warning and management of extreme events, including flash droughts; past and future climate on timescales including months, seasons, years and decades; value of climate services; adaptation decision support; climate insurance; policy; extension models; novel approaches to overcoming adoption barriers) for agricultural climate risk decision-making
- Scope: Land-based agricultural (food and fibre) production systems—global

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international Open Access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. Sustainability publishes original research articles, review articles and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
