Cognitive Studies Related to Sustainable, Resilient and Regenerative Design for Architecture and Environments

Message from the Guest Editors

We are living in an era of uncertainty, experiencing unexpected transformations due to critical issues related to climate, particulates and viruses threatening people's safety and health. The role of design in architecture and the environment is becoming more crucial for the quality of people's life in the context of the COVID-19 pandemic, since architecture and environment are supposed to be a shelter for people who are undergoing such changes. This Special Issue welcomes research contributions on cognitive studies related to the sustainable, resilient and regenerative development of our environments, in which the role of design is emphasized. We solicit interdisciplinary articles including environmental psychology, architecture, engineering, social sciences and technologies to share approaches to the proposed topic.

- sustainable architecture
- resilient environment
- regenerative design
- cognitive studies to design and environment
- biophilic design
- social distancing
- post-pandemic
- tactical urbanism

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international Open Access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. Sustainability publishes original research articles, review articles and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
