

Special Issue

Collaborative Economy: Policy and Regional Economic Development

Message from the Guest Editors

Current developments of the global economy shed new light on and increase the importance and the potential of the collaborative economy, policy, and regional economic development. Lockdowns due to the COVID-19 pandemic, new monetary policies, the collapse of logistics chains, energy crisis, and emissions-cutting targets emphasize the critical inevitability of a collaborative economy and the need for stimulus for regional economic development. Possible topics for the articles in this special issue may include but are not limited to the following:

- Sustainable consumption;
- Collaborative networks for regional economic development;
- Economic cycles and regional development;
- Industry–university partnerships for collaborative growth;
- Infrastructure investment and economic growth;
- Measurement of regional economic quality development;
- Multinational collaborative process focused on sustainability;
- Technological portfolios and economic growth;
- The impact of economic specialization on regional economic development;
- The influence of collaborative synergy on sustainability and business growth;
