Special Issue

Industrialized and Automated Construction in the Context of Sustainability

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims to collect outstanding original research and case study papers on the use and implications of industrialized and automated construction for sustainability on various levels, e.g., projects, businesses, industries, and societies. We hope that such a collection of research outputs will contribute to enhancing our understanding of state-of-the-art methods and practices for sustainable construction in communities of construction researchers and practitioners.
