Recent Research on Statistics, Machine Learning, and Data Science in Sustainability and Penta Helix Contribution

Message from the Guest Editors

We invite researchers to contribute original research and review articles dealing with Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and how statistics, machine learning, and data science can be used as tools to provide good solutions to Penta-helix collaboration involving stakeholders in better planning, implementation, and monitoring of the rebuilding process, including local governments, local communities, experts and academics, the media, and the private sector, which can be more effective in solving problems, especially in the SDGs sector. Topics of interest include but are not limited to:

- Implementation of recent statistics, machine learning, and data science in social sciences, social protection, economics, public health, remote sensing, environmental science and multidisciplinary research;
- Integrating research towards Penta-helix collaboration;
- Addressing the implication of the SDG topics.
