

Special Issue

Eco-Construction for Sustainable Development

Message from the Guest Editors

The construction industry supports the economy and social development in any country. However, it has significant impacts on the environment, such as the depletion of natural resources, carbon emissions, energy consumption, waste generation, and water consumption. Hence, it is essential to find solutions to bring sustainability to the construction industry. This Special Issue provides a platform for scientists and researchers to present recent progress in innovative research and development on sustainability in the construction industry and to report the new sustainable materials and their applications. Works that contribute to advancing our knowledge of advanced technologies and their applications for the sustainable development in construction are also welcome in this Special Issue.
