

Special Issue

Recent Development in Financial Sustainability

Message from the Guest Editors

The proposed Special Issue will address various issues of local and transnational frameworks, regulations, and taxonomies of factors related to sustainable development, environment, and climate change. These papers will make significant contributions to extend the literature on sustainability and green finance. This Special Issue welcomes contributions from research fields related to accounting, business, finance, and organizational behavior. Topics of interest may include:

- Sustainability and environmental reporting in accounting and auditing;
- Arbitration in sustainability and innovation and financial implications;
- Sustainability, performance, and wealth creation;
- Sustainability, environment, health (in particular, COVID-19), and transparency;
- Compliance with national and transnational initiatives, regulations, and taxonomies for sustainability and climate change;
- Environmentally friendly investments and efficiency;
- Green finance and bonds, climate change bonds, and transition bonds;
- Green accounting management and CO₂;
- Sustainability in ethics and corporate governance.
