Food, Sport and Sustainability in Contemporary Societies

Message from the Guest Editors

New consumption habits and sustainable leisure practices represent a lifestyle characteristic of today's modern, advanced societies, generating significant space for economic development through the production and consumption of organic products, food tourism based on organic food, sports marketing, and environmentally sustainable sporting activities that facilitate improved health and quality of life. This monograph invites papers related to lifestyles based on pro-environmental practices, production and consumption of organic products, outdoor sporting and physical activities, natural resources related to conservation, and the protection of natural spaces, the environment, and improving the health, quality of life, and wellbeing of the population, from the perspective of social and environmental sustainability.
