

Special Issue

International Business Theories and Internationalization of Emerging Economies

Message from the Guest Editors

Focus of the Special Issue: This Special Issue is focused on the thinkable theoretical inputs that will enhance the existing theoretical foundations of international business via taking the perspective of analyzing the internationalization processes of emerging economy firms and suggesting contributions to the existing international business theories. Scope: The Special Issue has a broad scope both geographically and thematically. From a geographic point of view, all internationalizing emerging economy firms regardless of where they originate from can be included in the submissions. Thematically, submissions must have a departing point of a review of the extant literature related to the theoretical basis of international business concerning firm internationalization. Purpose: The purpose of the Special Issue is to contribute to the extant literature on firm internationalization via analyzing the processual specifics of the internationalization of emerging economy firms.
