Social-Ecological Perspectives on Landscapes

Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues, Landscapes contribute significantly to human wellbeing and provide a setting for our daily lives. They also provide a context for ecological processes across time and space. Many landscapes across the world are being rapidly transformed in ways that are fundamentally altering both their societal and ecological functions. These changes are driven by powerful driving forces embedded within political, social and economic systems. Increasingly, we see the breakdown of linkages between people and the landscapes they inhabit, through processes ranging from industrialisation to land abandonment.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international Open Access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. Sustainability publishes original research articles, review articles and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
