New Perspectives in the Use of Participatory Methods for Development in Global South and North

Message from the Guest Editor

The aim of this Special Issue is to present up-to-date methodological and applied perspectives on the use of participatory methods for urban and rural development in countries of the global South and North. Relevant topics include theoretical aspects of participatory development, and methodologies and tools aimed at improving our understanding of obstacles to social, economic, or environmental sustainability 'on the ground' as well as at identifying potential solutions. Papers selected for this Special Issue will be subject to a rigorous peer-review procedure with the aim of rapid and wide dissemination of research results, developments, and applications.
