Social Resilience and Household Economics: Perspectives for Sustainability

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue is dedicated to the analysis of how social resilience in terms of household economics under a sustainable framework is possible. In particular, this Special Issue addresses the following aspects: (1) the impacts of COVID-19-related issues on social resilience in terms of household economics; (2) the relationships between household economics, social resilience, and sustainability in terms of culture, family ties, and legislation. Both areas of research may provide useful insights for policy makers.
