Special Issue

Sustainable Tourism and Hospitality in the Digital Age

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims to become a forum for the advancement of scientific knowledge by incorporating papers related to two key variables in the field of tourism and hospitality: sustainability and the digital age. We cannot speak of tourism in general ignoring further aspects which help specify the type of tourism. New tourist segments have developed such as heritage tourism, gastronomic tourism, nature tourism, collaborative tourism, and so on. And this development will be dwarfed by the possibilities that sectors such as artificial intelligence, big data, social networks, etc. will bring. For this reason, the goal of this Special Issue is to provide scientific studies that help understand the variable of tourism sustainability in a world increasingly digitized. Digital age and sustainability must coexist with post-COVID-19 tourism, entailing changes in the way we relate to each other and to the destination, manuscripts that provide a medium and long-term vision about these subjects will be welcomed.
