Frontier of Sustainable Management: Transparency, Corporate Reputation and Corporate Governance

Message from the Guest Editors

In recent years, many companies have rethought their raison d'être, and proof of this is the appearance of new business models. Thus, the post-pandemic era is the ideal opportunity to rethink concepts such as transparency, reputation and corporate governance in this new social and sustainable context. In a global environment where information flows (almost) without limits, the challenge is to attract stakeholders with the correct information on management and impacts so that they value and perceive the company as transparent and trustworthy. This forces companies to modify corporate structures and the management of the company, as well as the relationship with all stakeholders. This forces companies to modify structures and management, as well as the relationship with all stakeholders. Some topics of interest include but are not limited to the following:

- Sustainable transparency;
- From storytelling to storydoing;
- Sustainable business models;
- Changes in corporate governance
- Leadership and business change;
- Social impact of organizations;
- Organizational behavior
