

Special Issue

Subjective Wellbeing and Sustainable Development

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue calls for papers which will explore the importance of subjective wellbeing (swb) in the context of sustainability. Contributions will be informed by questions around the contribution of sustainability for swb as well as the potential for swb to achieve sustainability. Topics include, but are not limited to how we can conceptualise and measure swb to inform sustainability; the importance of enhancing swb to achieve sustainability and the extent to which sustainability initiatives can achieve this; the potential for swb to provide a new narrative for sustainability; or the role of individual and collective swb in achieving the changes needed for sustainability.

- Subjective wellbeing
- Sustainability
- Transformative change
- Sustainable development goals
- Relational wellbeing
- Human-environment interdependencies

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international open access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
