Special Issue

Women for Sustainable Energy

Message from the Guest Editors

A Special Issue entitled Women for Sustainable Energy is dedicated to female scientists who deal with sustainable energy topics, such as new and renewable sources of energy, life-cycle analysis, environmental issues of energy systems, energy policies for sustainability, energy crisis and mitigating actions, transition towards smart cities, energy communities, technologies for sustainable energy production and utilization, energy efficiency, social acceptance of sustainability initiatives, social equity and ethics in sustainable energy, and other interdisciplinary visions around sustainable energy resources. The role of women in sustainable sciences and engineering is being increasingly acknowledged despite still being underrepresented. We strongly encourage the submission of papers which recognize the role of women and of innovative and creative approaches to sustainability problems.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international open access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
