Special Issue

Human Biomonitoring: Development and Results

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue will focus on the emerging and comprehensive methods for biomonitoring and study results of various populations, including variety in geographic locations, life stage, population demographics (e.g., sex, general population, race/ethnicity), and exposure pathways (e.g., prenatal, dietary, non-dietary ingestion, occupation, accidental). The Special Issue seeks to highlight newer and emerging chemicals, but methods and data from more traditional toxicants will also be accepted. In addition, exposure-outcome studies, especially evaluating mixtures will be encouraged.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Toxics (ISSN 2305-6304) is an international, peer-reviewed, open access journal which provides an advanced forum for studies related to all aspects of toxic chemicals and materials. We aim to publish high quality work that furthers our understanding of the exposure, effects, and risks of chemicals and materials in humans and the natural environment as well as approaches to assess and/or manage the toxicological and ecotoxicological risks of chemicals and materials. Please consider publishing in Toxics when preparing your next paper.

Author Benefits

High Visibility:

indexed within Scopus, SCIE (Web of Science), PubMed, PMC, Embase, CAPlus / SciFinder, AGRIS, and other databases.

Journal Rank:

JCR - Q1 (Toxicology) / CiteScore - Q1 (Chemical Health and Safety)

Rapid Publication:

manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision is provided to authors approximately 18.1 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 1.9 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the first half of 2025).
