

Special Issue

Feature Papers in Environmental Epidemiology

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue will publish a series of articles highlighting recent developments and future perspectives in environmental epidemiology. All high-quality original research papers or reviews on the effect of environmental chemical exposures on human health are welcome. The Issue focuses broadly on research papers presenting innovative approaches to the study of environmental epidemiology or reviews that bring the field forward. Although this Issue is not limited to specific chemical exposures or outcomes, it may include epidemiological papers on mixture effects, sensitive life stages, paternal exposure and offspring health, and other recent developments within the field.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Toxics (ISSN 2305-6304) is an international, peer-reviewed, open access journal which provides an advanced forum for studies related to all aspects of toxic chemicals and materials. We aim to publish high quality work that furthers our understanding of the exposure, effects, and risks of chemicals and materials in humans and the natural environment as well as approaches to assess and/or manage the toxicological and ecotoxicological risks of chemicals and materials. Please consider publishing in Toxics when preparing your next paper.
